Registrar of Voters Program - Impact Due to Covid-19 - 4/2/2020 Update

The Connecticut Information Technology Institute (CITI), a division of the University of Connecticut (UConn) School of Business, is aware of the current outbreak of Covid-19 and its impact on continuing training and certification. As an entity of UConn, CITI is bound by the University’s decisions that are predicated on the State of Connecticut’s guidance.

Because the current situation is very fluid, with changes happening nearly daily, we will continue to provide guidance and update this message accordingly.

Status as of 4/2/2020:

Registrar of Voters Training Program:

- In agreement with the Connecticut Secretary of The State’s office, UConn CITI has begun redevelopment of the Registrar of Voters training program to create training modules that will be offered in an online environment.

- Based on this, UConn CITI has suspended the current Registrar of Voter's training program and all classes have been cancelled.

- It is anticipated that new courses will be available as soon as early May, with delivery of the remaining courses to be available by Summer 2020.

ROV Certification Exam:

- Effective April 1st, 2020: The Registrar of Voters Certification Exam can now be taken online at any time.
- Please click here for more details and to enroll for the exam

As more details emerge, they will be posted to the UConn CITI website.
